

TEEN INTERNSHIPS at SAN FRANCISCO BOTANICAL GARDEN

Who we are – San Francisco Botanical Garden is an amazing part of Golden Gate Park, featuring over 8500 kinds of plants from around the world. Visitors from all over the city, the state, and even the world come here to experience the incredible collection of plants.

What we do - Many city kids don't have a lot of opportunities to connect with nature, so we provide programs to get kids outside, including school programs, summer programs, and family programs. We help kids discover their own connections with the natural world by giving them a place to BE KIDS in nature!

Who YOU are – You're a teenager who appreciates the outdoors, who knows nature really matters, whether or not you've had much of a chance to be outside yourself. You're enthusiastic, curious, interested in other people, like to make things happen and want to make a difference in your community. We don't care about your grades, it's your attitude and willingness to work hard that matter.

What YOU can do – You can work with us to give hundreds of kids and their families a fantastic experience in the Botanical Garden, helping them develop a real connection with the natural world! Get paid to share nature activities with young children and their families on Saturday afternoons this spring, working with our staff and volunteers at Bean Sprouts Family Days in the Children's Garden.

What YOU will gain – The experience you'll have in the Garden will help you grow in so many ways! You'll gain leadership skills, become a better communicator, learn about the natural world, develop basic gardening skills, have a great time and make a difference in your community. Make new friends and earn some money too!
